

Property comment

Edited by Amanda de Bono

The city scene

What's hot and what's not for 2019

Ready, steady, go

Homelessness continues to rise, but the City's recovery in 2018 offers a glimmer of hope. The year was marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years.

Grimmy grin

The year's grim news was confirmed in 2018, as the city's homelessness problem continued to worsen. The number of homeless people rose to 10,500, a 10 per cent increase on the 9,500 recorded in 2017. The city's homelessness problem provides the opportunity for a £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

The highs

The city's recovery in 2018 was marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years. The year was also marked by the completion of several major projects, including the £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

New Era

The city's recovery in 2018 was marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years. The year was also marked by the completion of several major projects, including the £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

Stronger than ever

Over the last five years, the city's recovery has been marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years. The year was also marked by the completion of several major projects, including the £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

Technology growth

The city's recovery in 2018 was marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years. The year was also marked by the completion of several major projects, including the £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

Stronger than ever

Over the last five years, the city's recovery has been marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years. The year was also marked by the completion of several major projects, including the £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

Stronger than ever

Over the last five years, the city's recovery has been marked by a 10 per cent increase in new completions, with a total growth of 13.5% over the last five years. The year was also marked by the completion of several major projects, including the £1.2 billion investment in new housing, which will be completed by 2025.

What's hot and what's not for 2019

The high life

The skyline is edging Manhattan-wards. Within the next decade, a dense knot of skyscrapers will emerge, with a record 510 tall towers in the pipeline. This year, we expect completion of the tallest residential building in Europe: the Landmark Pinnacle, E14. The 1,000ft Tulip, a viewing platform by Foster + Partners set to be the tallest building in the City, is awaiting approval

